Black Love in the Millennial Age – Part 1

Love still reigns

One thing that still reigns true, love is special. Finding that special one as your mate is not easy but if you're one of the lucky ones, you'll find your loved one and cherish them. There's a great book called the Five Languages of love, the speaks to the idea that people learn what love is in their language, the five languages are: words of affirmation, quality time, gifts, acts of service, and physical touch. Meeting your spouses needs is a daily decision, continue to keep it passionate. Communicate with your spouse in their love language, if you don't know which one is hers...just ask.

Black Love in the Millennial Age – Part 2

In the area of social media, lack of courtship, the disappearance of parents in their children's relationships, and the increase of sci-fi movie thrillers, black love is not lost but yet transformed into this entertainment driven reality show of sorts. In an era where Black love is either an Instagram page hash tag or sewn across the brim of a baseball cap, the notion is exploited. Getting that out the way, black love today in 2017 is less "Brown Sugar" or "Love Jones" and more "Love and Hip Hop" and "Basketball Wives", and let's not forget these now "PROM-posals" for the younger folks out here. Beginning with this intro into black love through the eyes of my mid-adult 26-year young life, I fear an element of our past is lost, AND forgotten.

4:44 – A Poem sends shockwaves through Black America

[Jay-Z:]

Look, I apologize, often womanize
 Took for my child to be born
 See through a woman's eyes
 Took for these natural twins to believe in miracles
 Took me too long for this song
 I don't deserve you, I harass you out in Paris
 "Please come back to Rome"

You make it home

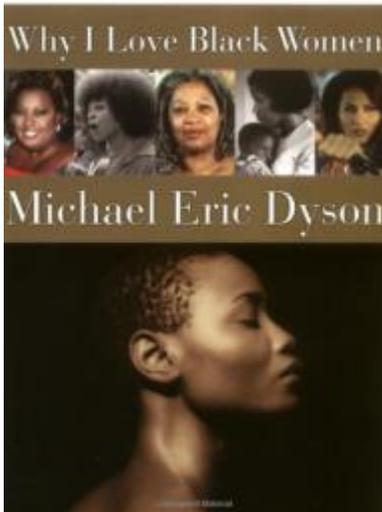

We talk ed for hours when you were on tour

"Please pick up the phone, pick up the phone"

Said: "Don't embarrass me," instead of "Be mine"
